About PHT

Presentation House Theatre (PHT) is the north shore's professional theatre company, where ideas play and grow into quality performing arts for all ages. Every show we present or produce will be of the highest professional standard while also appealing to the diversity of the North Shore.

Core Values

Shared Territory: PHT is committed to being a part of the decolonizing efforts and doing its work in a good way. We recognize and honour the Squamish and Tsleil-Waututh peoples who took care of this land from time immemorial, and we are grateful to join them as co-carers for this land and its people.

Diverse & Inclusive: Our communities, audiences, and artists are inter-generational, cross-cultural, gender diverse, international, and Indigenous to our land. We make space for broad and intersecting identities to be and to feel welcome, represented, and safe in our work, spaces, and presence.

Accessible & Welcoming: We seek to identify and remove all barriers that may prevent someone from participating in our community and programs, be they physical, financial, or otherwise.

Human Connection: Live performing arts are inherently HUMAN art forms that bring people together in shared experiences. This fact informs all our choices. At PHT we prioritize a human-first approach in our work, treating our partners, audience, students, artists, educators and staff as human beings above all else.

Safe Exploration: It is important to us that everyone feels safe at PHT. We approach all subject matter, especially the most difficult, with the utmost of care. We take care of one another and are accountable when we make mistakes.
